determine an ending of the current stage based on when the batch stage parameter no longer corresponds to the current value; and refine the model for subsequent batch processes based on the process control data stored in a continuous historian database between the beginning and the ending of the current stage.

* * * * *